Investment Manager's Comment

In March, the Spectravest fund avoided the trend of falling prices on the global stock markets, that began in mid-February, thanks to positions in gold and high-quality companies with low debt and moderate valuations. We decided to sell the position in the Australian Duratec, which had reached its fair value. Our Mexican government bonds expired at the beginning of the month and we decided not to acquire a new position at the moment because we do not like the distortions on the currency markets caused by the US tariff turbulences. At the end of the month, we held 12.6% in liquidity and 16.6% in gold and gold mining stocks. The weight of US equities was 20%.
